From Our Leadership

A brief note on the quarter's highlights, strategic direction, and gratitude to donors and partners.

“This quarter marked new beginnings and a renewed commitment to children’s rights. We opened vibrant learning spaces in underserved communities and launched innovative programmes – from SMART classrooms to youth skill development – breaking barriers and creating opportunities. Working closely with parents, teachers, and community leaders, we ensured children not only attend school but thrive in safe, supportive environments. Classrooms are alive with curiosity, Anganwadi Centres have become joyful learning hubs, and young voices lead change in health, nutrition, and environment. These milestones were possible thanks to our partners’ and donors’ unwavering support. Our promise remains: no child left behind.”

Stories from the Field

From Out of School to Aspiring Teacher - Amina's Inspiring Story

At the newly established Multi Activity Centre (MAC) in Sanjay Colony, 7-year-old Amina has discovered a world beyond the narrow lanes of her neighbourhood. Once out of school and spending her days at home, she now eagerly attends daily sessions filled with storytelling, drawing, and interactive lessons. The bridge learning programme has not only helped her catch up academically but also sparked her creativity and confidence. With encouragement from facilitators and support from her peers, Amina's dream of becoming a teacher feels closer than ever. Her journey reflects the MAC's mission – opening doors to education, hope, and new possibilities.

Young Tulsi's Journey of Leadership

Tulsi Kumari Sahu, an adolescent from Khidirpur Colony, Kolkata, once doubted her voice could bring change. Growing up amid poor sanitation, child labour, and school dropouts, she gained awareness and confidence through Bal Raksha Bharat's Dream Accelerator initiative. Training, children's collectives, and community campaigns transformed her into a leader and President of the Children's Council. Tulsi spearheaded a Micro Project on sanitation, hygiene, and education, conducting cleanliness drives, identifying out-of-school children, and enrolling them in school. Despite initial resistance, her persistence engaged parents, teachers, and local stakeholders, improving waste management and hygiene awareness. Now recognised as a health awareness leader, Tulsi envisions a future where every child is educated, every home is clean, and every voice is heard – inspiring change in her community.

1. Scale SMART School model across more geographies.
2. Expand skill training to reach 500+ youth in the next quarter.
3. Strengthen advocacy in child rights for education & nutrition.
